

QUESTIONS FOR REFLECTION ON

authentic witness

What does the gospel mean to you?

What obstacles come to mind when you consider sharing your faith with someone?

If you had satisfactory answers from God for your deepest spiritual questions, how would that change how it feels to share your faith?

What are those deep spiritual questions? What's one step you could take to find answers from God?

If you had a miracle magnifying glass and could see into people's hearts, how would you share your faith? What would you say? What would you do? Does that look different from how you share your faith now?

When you put yourself in the shoes of the people with whom you want to share your faith, how does the gospel look to you? What's the best way it could possibly be taken? What's the worst way it could be misunderstood?

How would you explain the gospel if all of your inhibitions were gone? What would you say? If you're not sure, what could you do about that?

If God promised to remove three obstacles to witnessing, what would you ask Him to do?

If you think about the word "witness," what comes up for you? What if you take it out of the spiritual context? What does it mean now? How might that change the way you approach witnessing?

What if there were a way to witness that felt authentic for your personality and strengths? For your level of social energy, your friendship style, your gifting? What would that witnessing method or style look like?

What do you sense the Holy Spirit calling you to do now?
